Tracking Animals

Fall is a time when many people like to go hunting. Hunters often look for tracks and other signs or evidence as they walk through an area. Pretend that you are a hunter. Can you draw a line from the animal to the correct set of tracks?

Looking for Tracks

You can look for tracks too! Good places to find tracks are the beach, a river or pond bank, a dry sandy area near the woods or even a muddy area in your own backyard.

Take Action!!!

When you are looking for tracks and other signs, take time to pick up litter, especially plastic items that won't recycle naturally, or biodegrade. It is a good idea to snip the six-pack plastic rings you find before a bird or fish get stuck in them! Can you think of other ways that you can help protect the environment?
